GOING ALONG

The material that is entering into the construction of the state highway west from Tombstone is especially good, containing as it does excellent binding qualities. The surfacing until it reaches the monument will be caliche and lime, but from the monument to Walnut Gulch it will be decomposed granite. The weather is admirable for road construction and excellent progress is noticeable. The elimination of the reverse curve through the boulders at that point is a most noticeable improvement in the location, which change not only eliminates the curve, but also gives a maximum grade at that point and places the road about 75 feet south of the monument.
